

Cast Upon the Water

A view into a weekend retreat of CFR

By Wanda Taylor

NA Flyfisher Magazine Winter 2005

They started arriving around 3 p.m. on Friday afternoon. Each woman entered wearing her unique countenance on her face as she entered the lobby to check in for her Casting for Recovery (CFR) retreat weekend. Some of the faces read a little of nervousness of meeting new people, others weary from travel, while others were exhausted from chemotherapy or radiation treatment.

Each face came in one by one, in every size, shape, creed and color, joining a club that no one wished she had become a member of, for a weekend of fun, fly fishing, fly tying and casting of flies and fears upon the waters with Casting for Recovery.
